Sovereign of the Seas

Sovereign of the Seas - Ship Description

Floor-to-ceiling windows, comfortably sized staterooms, and a sophisticated, four-story central lobby highlight the spaciousness of Sovereign of the Seas. As part of the Sovereign Family of ships, it was among the first mega ships in the cruise industry to take to the seas, and it's still an industry leader in the realm of family-friendly activities and innovative public areas, which include nine bars and lounges, an open-air basketball court, twin cinemas, and Royal Caribbean's signature rock climbing wall.

The ship's Sun Deck boasts two swimming pools, flanked by a pool bar and two wide decks stocked with rows of chairs for sun tanning, reading, and sipping cool drinks. Guests in the mood for an endorphin rush should take on the ship's rock-climbing wall, which towers 200 feet above sea level. Extend the workout with a trip to the ship's fitness center, or soothe sore muscles at the ship's full-service spa. If you just want to relax, catch a movie in the ship's cinema. If you've promised gifts to friends at home, Sovereign of the Seas has a wide range of boutiques for shopping or just browsing.

Meals options include sunrise coffee, breakfast, poolside lunch, afternoon tea, snacks, cocktails, dinner, and a midnight buffet. For those favoring a less decadent menu, there are vegetarian and low-fat ShipShape menu choices. Or, sit in the sun and enjoy the ocean breezes and panoramic views at the outdoor Windjammer Cafe. When it's time for entertainment, there are nine lounges to mingle in, plenty of live entertainment, and a casino filled with table games and slot machines. All the while, Adventure Ocean youth facilities take care of the younger set.
